PREFACE.

The compilation of this catalogue was undertaken by an early pupil, as a pastime, and has been carried on for over six years, the first three years having been employed in locating the individual teacher or pupil, or a relative.

This search for the person often necessitated a dozen letters, while the obtaining of a personal sketch, in reply to a series of printed questions mailed to each person, or to some relative where the person was not living, has, in seventy-five per cent of the cases, required a second circular (of which circulars a total of six thousand have been mailed), and in fifty per cent of the cases where these second circulars were sent, they had to be followed by one, or several, personal letters asking reply.

With the exception of those not located, each individual person is therefore responsible for any lack of details regarding himself or herself.

Any discrepancies in the present address, or occupation, arise from changes made since the information was obtained.

The compiler desires to acknowledge the generous co-operation received from many directions, but the information desired could never have been secured without the fullest and constant assistance of Mr. N. T. Allen and Mr. James T. Allen.

Doubtless there is some omission of names in this catalogue, of pupils who took lessons only in music, dancing, or some other single accomplishment, their names never having appeared in the old catalogues of the school.

Additional information, and the correction of errors and omissions in this work, is earnestly desired, and should be mailed at all times to the secretary of the West Newton English and Classical School Alumni Association, West Newton, Mass.

EXPLANATIONS AND ABBREVIATIONS.

An asterisk signifies not living.

The date and place first given is the year of first entering the school and the home at the time.

Where only a capital letter is used for a city or town, it refers to the place first named in the same sketch, beginning with the same letter, if such occurs; otherwise as below.

The last place or capital letter given, is the last known address.

If no State is given, Mass. is understood, excepting that prominent cities sometimes may appear without the State.

Births, marriages and deaths are indicated by b., m. and d. respectively, the city or town following, in each case, being the place where the record is to be found (villages being omitted, as conspicuously in the case of Newton).

Abbreviations in general and for colleges, degrees, etc., are those in common use, the degree A.B. being understood, if year of graduation is given. If year is not given, a partial course or special branches were probably taken.

HISTORY OF THE SCHOOL.

The following details of the history of the school are taken from a lengthy sketch prepared in 1872, by Rev. James Thurston.

"Its origin carries us back to our great pioneer in educational reform, one of the noblest and most honored citizens of the Commonwealth, whose services to the State and to the world have given us the statue in the State House yard bearing the name and form of Horace Mann.

"As an institution, it has long held a prominent place in the public regard, and is warmly cherished in the memories of a great number of both sexes who have been its pupils, scattered over our country and foreign lands, as well as of others who, during the whole period of its history, have been its patrons and friends.

"It was in April, 1848, soon after the location of the State Normal School at West Newton, under the auspices of the State Secretary and Board of Education, and under the superintendence of that admirable teacher, "Father Peirce," that a union was formed between the State Normal School and the School District of West Newton, then including Auburndale. The object of the union was the formation of a "Model School" where all the most improved methods of instruction should be adopted, and the best talent employed to develop the young, and show by example what a true school should be. Mr. Nathaniel T. Allen, then entering the profession of teacher with all the fresh enthusiasm that had been encouraged by the newly awakened public interest in education, was appointed principal of this Model school. This was the first yearly public school that had ever been taught in Newton. The pupils were in part the children of the district, and in part those who came from other districts, towns and States.

"Mr. Allen's assistants were the young ladies of the Normal school, who spent, each in turn, three weeks in observing and teaching under Mr. Allen's eye in the Model school. The popularity of the school was such as to attract a large number of visitors continually, from Boston and other places. On the removal of the Normal school to Framingham, in 1853, the Model school was given up, Mr. Allen declining to leave with it as was desired.

"Mr. Mann and other friends of education now urged Mr. Allen to open a private school. This was immediately done in connection with "Father Peirce," and was continued till his death. The schoolhouse and grounds hitherto occupied by the Normal school were purchased. A circular was issued, proposing to open a first-class unsectarian school, where both sexes could be safely sent, and thoroughly well taught in all branches embraced in a broad and generous culture. The result was that a large number of pupils soon offered themselves, and the school from the first has been generously sustained. The patrons have been parents and guardians of the highest social position in the country, as may be seen by reference to the catalogues of the institution.

"In 1855 an act of incorporation was passed by the legislature, securing such privileges as the policy of the State has seen fit to grant to educational institutions, from Harvard College to the simplest public or private school. That this policy is a wise one, even in a pecuniary point of view, is seen in a statement made to the selectmen in 1870. It was as follows : —

"The school up to that time had brought into the village seventy-five students from foreign countries, who had paid an average of $2,000 each, or in all $150,000; two hundred and fifty students from other States, paying an average of $1,000 each, or $250,000 in all; eight hundred students from other towns in the State, paying each $350, or in all $280,000; two hundred students from other villages in Newton paying $150 each, or $30,000; two hundred students from West Newton paying each $200, or in all $40,000. These various amounts make $750,000, which has been dispensed in the State in fifteen years, and nearly all in West Newton, save the small sums remaining in the hands of the teachers of the school. Comment is unnecessary. But the pecuniary benefit is only one of the advantages of such a school. The influences are manifold, social, intellectual, moral. And while some short-sighted persons may complain of that liberal and enlightened policy of our State which exempts an incorporated school from taxation, we will not regret that there are four institutions of education in our town that are so exempted, and which are worthy of our honor and attachment. Nor can we look without regret upon the discontinuance or removal of any of these so much valued institutions."

The school building was erected in 1832, by means of a bequest of Judge Abraham Fuller for establishing an academy, and therein Master Perkins and Master Seth Davis taught two years each, when it was purchased by Hon. Josiah Quincy, Jr., and given to Horace Mann for the use of the Normal school, the property to revert to Horace Mann, he selling to Nathaniel T. Allen in 1853, and an act of incorporation being obtained in 1855.

The exterior and the interior of the building remains much the same as it was originally.

The first gymnastic apparatus was erected in the school yard, May 17, 1854.

THE KINDERGARTEN DEPARTMENT.

One of the first Kindergarten schools ever taught in this country was opened as a branch of the West Newton English and Classical School, as early as January, 1863, if not earlier, by Mrs. Louise Pollock, one of the pioneer kindergarteners of America, then a resident of West Newton (see Teachers), the system having attracted the attention of, and been investigated by, Mr. James T. Allen in 1859, he having visited the kindergartens of Berlin, Prussia, under the guidance and instruction of Baroness Marenholtz Von Bulow, the pupil and interpreter of Fröbel, who has since been recognized as the highest authority regarding his system and philosophy.

Evidence of this early kindergarten is found in the termly written lists of the pupils of the whole school, kept by Mr. N. T. Allen, wherein the kindergarten and primary pupils are so designated, with the month of their first entering the school. In this record the names of five kindergarten pupils are given as entering January, 1863, thirteen others in April and thirteen others in September, etc.

A further confirmation of this earliest kindergarten is found in the written records of Miss Ellen O. Swain, teacher of the "Training School," another branch of the West Newton English and Classical School, which opened September, 1863, with nineteen pupils. At the close of the quarter, she says, "Object lessons were given to the school, in connection with a class from the kindergarten, twice a week"; and again she writes, "A daily lesson in vocal music was given in connection with the members of the kindergarten."

The accompanying group of one of these kindergarten classes was daguerreotyped as early as the fall of 1864, and, so far as is known, is the earliest group taken of a kindergarten class in this country.

Of the eleven children in the group, all but one are now living.

PRINCIPALS.

Allen, Nathaniel Topliff, '54-'95; b. Medfield, Sept. 29, '23; m. Caroline S. Bassett, Nantucket, Mar. 30, '53; educated pub. schs. M. and Waltham; Rev. Jos. Allen's Home sch., Northboro; Northfield Acad.; grad. Bridgewater Normal sch., '46, cont'd Troy Poly.; working in the Waltham Cotton Mill, during portions of three years, from ten to thirteen; a farmer summers, student winters, until '42; taught Mansfield, '42-'43, Northboro, '43-'44 and '47-'48, Northfield, '44-'46, Shrewsbury, '46-'47; prin. of Model Dept. of Mass. State Normal Sch. at W. N. (the first ever established in U. S.), '48-'53; agt. in Germany, '69-'70, of U. S. Comr. of Ed., his report on secondary schs. being pub. by U. S. Comr. Pub. Instr.; member Amer. Peace Soc. 20 yrs. and an officer for 10 yrs.; pres. bd. of directors Pomeroy Home for Orphans, N., since incorporation, and ex-pres. Bridgewater Normal Sch. Asso.; member Nat. Teachers' Asso., Amer. Inst. of Instruction, and other educational organizations; one of the most progressive and successful of educators, a pronounced advocate of the co-education of the sexes, unyielding in discipline, but full of humor and anecdote; early, active, and vigorous in the anti-slavery cause, and in providing for the education of the colored race, when the practical maintainance of his views brought serious loss of patronage to his school, and prominent in all the later advance and reform movements; broad and liberal in his views and always active in all that relates to the welfare of the community, he is still in active service at past three score years and ten, showing few signs of the exacting labors and unrelenting activities of a life of 50 odd yrs. of teaching; W. N.

*Peirce, Cyrus, '54-'58; b. Waltham, Aug. 15, 1790; m. Harriet Coffin, Nantucket, abt. '16; d. Newton, Apr. 5, '60; ed. dist. schs.; Fram. Acad.; Harv., '10; theology, Camb., '12-'15; ordained and settled No. Reading, '19-'27; taught W. N., '07-'08, Nantucket, '10-'12, '15-'18, '31-'39, Andover, '27-'30; in '37 he devised classification of schools for Nantucket, and became prin. of High sch., making vigorous protest against prejudice of color in education. Here Horace Mann, the sec'y of the Bd. of Ed., "found the man who could construct, manage, and teach a school, better even than he himself could tell how it ought to be done," and Mr. P. opened at Lexington, July 3, '39, the first Normal sch. on this continent, with but three pupils, so strong was the prejudice against such an innovation, teachers feeling it a derogatory imputation upon the fraternity and a menace to all seminaries and academies. If to Mr. Mann the conception was due, Mr. Peirce settled the problem of the Normal sch. system, against all and every kind of opposition; here his "model sch." gave his Normal pupils practical lessons, in teaching the children of the community; here he acquired the name of "Father Peirce"; three years' exacting labors necessitated two years' rest; Aug., '44, he again became principal, removing the sch. to the present W. N. Eng. and Class. Sch. bldg., which he reconstructed internally, remaining five yrs.; with broken health, he spent '49-'50 abroad. As student and teacher he was indefatigable and painstaking, seldom allowing himself over 4 hours for sleep, acting always as his own school janitor and chore man; during 50 years of teaching he was never absent for recreation and but twice tardy; "Live to the Truth" was his favorite motto, and such was his life.

THE MOTHERS OF THE FAMILIES.

Where so large a proportion of the pupils have had the special advantages of the family system and home training at the houses of the principals, no historical catalogue of the school would be complete without special reference being made, and just recognition being given, to the noble band of "mothers of the families," who have had no secondary part to play in the direct education of the "family" pupils, and in the home care, influences and training which jointly have made the school famous.

Prominent among these are the following:—

Mrs. Nathaniel T. Allen, née Caroline Swift Bassett, '54-'95; Nantucket High sch.; Fram. Normal sch., '49; taught N., '49-'52; b. N., Oct. 16, '30; m. N., Mar. 30, '53.

*Mrs. Cyrus Peirce, née Harriet Coffin; '54-'58; b. Nantucket, June 26, 1794; m. N., May 5, '16; d. N., Sept. 29, '84; taught N., a few years; an amateur botanist.

*Mrs. George E. Allen, née Susan Maria Treat, '54-'88; ed. Sudbury and Waltham; b. Northboro, June 1, '18; m. Waltham, Apr. 25, '44; d. N., Jan. 6, '88.

Mrs. James T. Allen, née Caroline Augusta Kittredge, '60-'95; ed. pub. and priv. schs., Lynn, David Mack's, Belmont, and Brook Farm, W. Roxbury; b. Dover, Vt., July 4, '33; m. Lynn, Aug. 25, '60; taught priv. classes, B.; W. N.

*Mrs. Joseph A. Allen, née Lucy Temple Burt, '69-'75; ed. seminary, Schenectady, N.Y., Emma Willard's Sem., Troy, N.Y., '38; b. Fayetteville, N.Y., Oct. 20, '22; m. Syracuse, N.Y., Nov. 24, '45; d. N., Mar. 19, '75.

*Mrs. Phineas Allen, née Clarissa Fiske, '60-'85; Medfield common schs.; b. M., Nov. 4, '01; m. M., Sept. 3, '28; d. Passaic, N.J., Nov. 28, '87.

Mrs. T. Prentiss Allen, née Sarah Alexander Lord, '64-'68; Fram. Normal, '42; b. Northfield, Apr. 24, '25; m. Northboro, Nov. 17, '46; taught Northfield, Templeton, Roxbury, Jamaica Plain, and as asst. to husband; Northboro.

Mrs. Edward A. H. Allen, née Eugenia Sophia Teulon, '72-'74; see pupil.

GRANDPA AND GRANDMA ALLEN.

Another delightful memory will always remain with those who were favored to know Grandpa and Grandma Allen, the parents of George E., Joseph A., Nathaniel T., and James T.; the brother and sister-in-law of "Uncle Phinny," and the uncle and aunt of the brothers Joseph H., T. Prentiss, Edward A. H., and William T. Allen.

Their faces and the following data should find a welcome place herein:—

THE FIRST REUNION.

The first reunion was held in West Newton, jointly with the former pupils of the "Model School," in response to the following circular letter of invitation :

Dear Schoolmate :—

At a large meeting of the late pupils of MR. NATHANIEL T. ALLEN, (of the Model and the English and Classical Schools,) held at the Parker House, Boston, Oct. 24, 1871, it was unanimously agreed to hold a Reunion, combined with a Reception to our respected teacher, on his return from a two years' absence abroad, on WEDNESDAY, NOV. 15, 1871.

A general committee of twenty-five was chosen, from which were selected the following persons to act as an executive committee :

Chairman, SAMUEL S. WHITNEY, Boston.

REV. JOSEPH B. CLARKE, Newtonville.

EDWARD J. FORSTER, M.D., Charlestown.

EDMUND M. WOOD, ESQ., Wellesley.

CAPT. JOSEPH E. FISKE, Grantville.

MISS ISABEL WELCHMAN, Boston.

MISS FANNIE N. BIRD, East Walpole.

The programme includes an address by Rev. Arthur M. Knapp, of Bangor, Me., and a poem, in the Unitarian Church, West Newton, at 2.15 P.M.; a dinner, with addresses, music, reminiscences, etc., in the Town Hall; to conclude with a social gathering in the evening.

It is earnestly desired, as necessary to the complete success of this object, that each one receiving this circular write AT ONCE to the secretary in regard to the probability of their attendance.

Husbands and wives of past members of either school are cordially invited to be present.

JOSEPH E. FISKE,

Sec'y Executive Committee.

Grantville, Oct. 28, 1871.

In response to this circular letter of invitation, past pupils, representing nearly every school year and many States, were present to the number of two hundred or more, one of the severest storms of the year preventing the attendance of much larger numbers, who had expressed their intention of being present.

The exercises at the church proceeded in the order following, Robert R. Bishop, of Newton, acting as President of the Day assisted by Rev. Joseph B. Clarke, of Jamaica Plain, Chaplain.

EXTRACTS FROM MR. KNAPP'S ADDRESS.

One of my earliest and most vivid recollections of West Newton was the sight of the tall, commanding form and magnificent head of Horace Mann, in whose family it was my privilege to be often welcomed. It was he who gave the moving impulse to this school of ours; who laid the foundation along with that of the grand structure of public education, which will be his everlasting monument. The Model school,—a semi-public school of which ours is the outgrowth, and of which Mr. N. T. Allen was the first principal,—was established, in 1848, in connection and co-operation with the Normal School, which latter was Mr. Mann's pride and idol.

On the removal of the Normal School to Framingham, in the year 1854, the model school was discontinued, and Nathaniel T. Allen conceived the plan of opening a private school in the building thus left vacant.

To me, the name of Rev. Cyrus Peirce, the first associate principal, is especially endeared; for it was my privilege for two years to live in intimate relations with him as a sort of adopted son. His large and varied experience, his educational renown, his grand integrity, his finished scholarship, his Christian gentleness and love, have left an impress upon this institution and upon thousands of pupils, which can never be effaced, and ought never to be ignored. Too much honor cannot be bestowed upon him who thus gave the last effort of his feeble life to the cause which had ever been its inspiration and its joy.

During many years of his school labors, it was his constant habit to dismiss his pupils with the benediction of the great command, "Live to the Truth." It was his motto in life and in death. And being dead he yet speaketh. A few summers ago, I chanced to stroll amid the scenes of my earliest years, and there in a quiet graveyard, on the sea-girt island of Nantucket, in sight of the decaying and lonely town, I found a simple and beautiful monument, bearing this inscription:—CYRUS PEIRCE. "Live to the truth." It was erected by his grateful and loving pupils, who sought thus to honor him, by renewing upon his quiet resting place the benediction of his peace, which had found so blessed a place in their hearts.

We can point with pride to the energy and fidelity to duty with which the standard of the school has been maintained; to the devotion to the cause of education which has kept it in the front rank of institutions of its kind; to the progressive spirit which has made it first to incorporate into its methods every new and good feature of modern instruction; to the force of character which has made its name the synonyme for thoroughness, good discipline, and practical training for the work of life; to the independence which has braved the prejudices of the community, by always granting its privileges without distinction of sex or color; and to the uninterrupted success which has attended its course from the beginning.

Such has been its history, guided by the good genius of its founders, and upheld by the fidelity of those who gave to it the work of their lives.

Every such institution lives a second, an immortal life, in the lives of those whom it sends forth into the world,— a life which it is of absorbing interest to us to trace,— a history of which each of our careers, my schoolmates and friends, forms a chapter. How many chapters shall there be? They must be numbered by thousands. Two hundred and fifty or more will tell us, beside the ordinary events of daily life, the thrilling story of actors in the great tragedy of our country's life, when from the companions of our peaceful studies, heeding most the lessons of patriotism and liberty which here they learned, they became comrades in the great army of freedom, which through storm and death marched so gloriously to victory. Some speak to us from unknown graves, some from lofty monuments erected by a grateful people. Some tell a story of wounds, imprisonment, and shattered health. All recount the tale of hardship, and toil, and fierce struggle endured unto the end, because joined with the country's agony.

Many hundred chapters breathe another and more peaceful tone. They tell us of the cares, and perplexities, and temptations, and successes of business life, of that activity and enterprise which, putting into practice the simple knowledge here learned, is building up the grand fabric of our material prosperity.

Still other parts of the great volume tell us how the studies here have been the key to the secrets of higher and more entrancing knowledge; how by means of them the world has become filled with wonder, and glory, and beauty, every new research a foundation of life to the eager and toiling student. And yet others, perhaps the vast majority, have to tell us only that simply story, which is yet the most beautiful in all the annals of God, how the early treasures of knowledge which they carried forth from this place, have been the light of the home circle, the charm of domestic life, a peaceful rest from the weariness of toil, a refuge from suffering, and the solace of the lonely hours.

In the broad sunlight of the noonday in which we live, if we would escape the perils and doubts of the day, we must needs turn our gaze back to the visions of the dawn, to trust firmly in their reality, and take them again to our hearts; to strengthen our resolves and our hopes for the future. The dreams of life's morning are the blessed realities of God. And this was the scene of the bestowal of such gifts, grander and more glorious than any school task or any knowledge laboriously instilled by our faithful teachers.

A poem written by Miss Mary C. Pike, of New York, was read, in her absence, by the Chaplain.

The following original hymn was sung by a choir composed of members of the school.

HYMN.

BY CHARLES F. HOWLAND.

AIR — "Auld Lang Syne."

As friends and schoolmates here we meet,
To have a jovial time,
For many years have past, and fled
Are hours of youthful prime
For those, that in the schoolhouse near,
(How hallowed seems the spot!)
Learned lessons in those childish days
E'en now are not forgot.

From Classes scattered far and wide,
We gather then to-day,
To clasp once more each others' hands,
As pause we, while we may,
From busy work of various kinds,
Where'er our lot is cast.
Oh, let us prize each happy hour,
So soon 't will be the last!

But speak not we as scholars old,
The school maintains its sway,
And others' forms these chairs now hold
That ours were yesterday.
The lessons that we learned in youth,
Our teachers teach to them,
And men and women 'neath their rules,
Are growing up again.

Then take a hand, my schoolmates all,
And gie's a hand o' thine,
Let naught but kindness fill our hearts,
For sake of Auld Lang Syne.
For Auld Lang Syne, my friends,
For Auld Lang Syne,
We'll think again in later years,
Of days of Auld Lang Syne.

At the close of a collation at the Town Hall, the exercises continued as follows, President Bishop presiding, and Charles F. Howland acting as Toast Master.

ADDRESS OF ROBERT R. BISHOP.

Schoolmates :—

We gather to-day to welcome back from his absence our honored teacher and beloved friend. The waters have borne him safely across the deep, and he is at home again. The family circle is unbroken. Our loving friend who graces his side, and the olive plants whom his heart cherishes, are here. His venerable parents, the pathway of whose declining years their children fill with sunshine, still live to welcome him, with us. We thank God that we can do him honor in their presence.

Think of the ties of love from two thousand hearts ! Think of the blessings of two thousand tongues ! Think that over the globe, wherever business or science call men to go,—in Europe, in China, in California, beyond the distant seas,—there are now men and women who think of this quiet village nestled under the hills, and of the plain and unadorned schoolroom precious to the memory ; and as the form and lineaments of our friend take their place in the recollection, say, “He was a man who strengthened my character ; he was a man who helped me to be a man !” Are there any riches, are there any treasures, to be compared with a satisfaction like this ?

For two things which from the beginning have characterized the management of the Model and the English and Classical School, bear fruit to-day. One is the spirit of justice toward the pupils, that impartial treading the line of right and wrong, which we always found here. The youngest, the feeblest, the least conspicuous, always obtained justice here ; the dullest, the most backward, the friendless and discouraged, received sympathy, encouragement, and cheer. A slave, an orphan, or a prince, it was all the same to him ; each in the same degree found the open heart, the ready hand of assistance, the candor and love of a friend. The other thing is the warm personal interest with which Mr. Allen, and our other teachers here, have followed the pupils in after life. We are not forgotten when the schoolroom door has closed upon its hinges behind us. Mr. Allen never fails to greet us as if we were his,—and we are his still. He keeps the run of our successes, he has a word of good courage and aid in our disappointments, he follows our pursuits, he knows the number of our children, and their faces, too ; our pride, our pleasure, our sorrow is his also ; he is not the friend of a day, he is the friend of life.

It is to such a school, and to such a teacher, that we return to-day. Welcome, then, to the joys and festivities, welcome to the grateful recollections and the ardent hopes of the hour ; welcome, thrice welcome, beloved friend ! and may your life and labors here be so prolonged that the two thousand who to-day re-echo the word, shall be but a fraction of the number who shall speak your praises at the last.

N. T. Allen, the principal of the school, and one of its founders, being called upon, spoke as follows :

REMARKS OF N. T. ALLEN.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen, Past and Present Pupils :

It is with great difficulty that my feelings will allow utterance upon this occasion, among the most joyous in my life ; and yet I must speak a word to express to you my heartfelt gratitude for this opportunity to meet, to grasp the hands, and exchange the cordial, loving greetings of these hundreds before me.

When, in August last, and just after returning from an absence of two years, a letter reached me from the chairman of your Executive Committee, asking if such a re-union would be acceptable, my answer was, " If such is the wish of our former pupils, Yes." And this is the result, for which accept my warmest thanks.

It needed not this gathering to convince me of your attachment to your former school, schoolmates, and teachers. For years the kindness extended to us and our school has been a constant source of joy to me. That unwavering friendship received from you as we meet, makes me quite ashamed that I did so little for you when with us. May this love for, and interest in each other, continue and increase through life, till we pass on and join the loved ones who have already left us, now in the spirit land.

It is nearly a quarter of a century since I came to this village, and took charge of the Model Department of the State Normal School, then recently removed from Lexington. Several before me were among the eighteen boys and girls who greeted me at my first entrance to the school, April 12, 1848. Upon the removal of the Normal School to Framingham, it seemed best not to continue my connection with it. Numerous friends in Newton and elsewhere urged me to open the present school, and it may not be amiss to say that no one more strongly encouraged the undertaking than Hon. Horace Mann, the great apostle of public schools.

Theodore Parker, Dr. Samuel G. Howe, and others, assured me that a private school such as was proposed, strictly unsectarian, was demanded, and would be sustained by the community. Numerous other friends, some of whom are now present, have from the first encouraged us by their efficient and generous influence.

Father Peirce, of grand and delightful memory, joined in opening and teaching in the school, remaining in connection with it till his death, five years after. Nor can I allow the present opportunity to pass without according to that noble man the highest merit, in developing and sustaining the school, in whatever of true prosperity has attached to it.

The fact that the gentlemen just named were in full accord with our enterprise, is sufficient to show that it was founded upon sound principles.

That private schools have their proper place in the educational system of our State and country is conceded. They flourish in all portions of Germany, as distinct from the public or government schools, which are also tuition paying. They are demanded in Massachusetts by those who cannot depend upon the public schools for the education and culture of their sons and daughters.

I believe the public schools of Massachusetts are superior to the private as a whole. I also claim, most emphatically, that a private school under equally competent management, if well sustained, should be superior to any public school. It is impossible to find a school committee who can manage or arrange a school so well or efficiently as competent teachers.

Our mission has never been antagonistic to the best interests of the public schools. We know the higher they rise, the more can our standard be raised. In a degree, it is the same with us as with Cambridge and other Massachusetts colleges. Directly as one is elevated in character, so the other.

Our pupils have been and are drawn from various sources. First: From cities and towns where the schools do not meet the desires of parents. Second: Those who have lost one or both parents, necessitating their being sent from home to school. Third: Many come to us for preparation to enter some higher educational institution, law, medical, military, naval, agricultural, and other schools, as well as for college.

Natives of Massachusetts, men and women who have settled in the West or South, send their children to some school in their native State, that they may become imbued with the New England spirit and character. Such parents are found in the most prominent positions throughout the West and South.

I have detained you already too long, and renewing the thanks of Mrs. Allen and myself for this generous reception, I will take my seat.

He was followed by George E. Allen, who spoke in response to the sentiment, "The English and Classical School."

REMARKS OF GEORGE E. ALLEN.

Mr. President:—

It strikes me rather singularly that I should be called upon to speak for the English and Classical School. Why, my dear sir, the English and Classical School is here to speak for itself; and abundantly able is it through its members so to speak. Not only to our edification, but to our instruction as well. It is present in its three-fold character,—physical, intellectual and moral. The physical, sir, has been amply and abundantly exemplified around the tables to-day, showing by their works that they have not forgotten the oft-repeated motto, "Whatsoever your hands find to do, do it with your might"; or that other, "What is worth doing at all, is worth doing well."

Regarding the intellectual, we point you to over two hundred teachers who have gone out from us, and are doing yeoman's service in the noble cause of education, many of whom occupy positions of honor as well as usefulness; yes, and taking rank among the most successful in the good old State of Massachusetts, where teaching is classed as one of the learned professions. We also count among our graduates some score of the legal profession, who, waiting for no habeas corpus, voluntarily report themselves to-day.

They are an honor to the profession they have chosen. As a proof of this, I may cite our honorable President of the Day, an upright lawyer—the better we know him, the more highly we respect him. In the special department of morals, what more is necessary than to present the “Orator of the Day,” Rev. Arthur M. Knapp, of Bangor. He has spoken for himself to-day, hence needs no word of mine to attest his manliness. And, too, Mr. President, our “Chaplain of the Day,” orthodox in the truest and broadest sense, one of our most popular preachers, his faith is shown by his works, and his works show a true faith. I might mention other clergymen among our old pupils, yes, and of all denominations, and all earnest, faithful, and successful in their several fields of labor. May we not claim it as among the excellencies of our institution, that upon its foundation so many divine yet beautiful superstructures have arisen? Do not its roots strike deep, even to the rock of truth? Had I time, I might speak of eminent engineers, civil and mining, all in responsible positions; one, the chief engineer of the Central Railroad of Iowa, Charles C. Gilman, of Chelsea, claimed to be the youngest chief engineer in the world; John Rice, a professor in the naval academy at Annapolis; Walter Crafts, among the most eminent mining engineers in the country; but your memory must supply, for time passes rapidly. Shall I speak of Fiske, Forster, Whitney, and Wood? Have they not to-day, through their indefatigable labors, added to our enjoyment? or, rather, made this “reunion” possible?

We, sir, teachers—past and present—feel a just pride in such friends as we welcome to-day. The seed cast upon the waters has returned to us to-day; and do they not return, many of them, bringing their sheaves with them? Wives and husbands of our pupils! doubly welcome are you all; our circle gladly opens to embrace you, for you can testify to the excellence of individual pupils of our Alma Mater.

But I must not sit down without speaking of the brave two hundred, who, taking their lives in their hands, went forth to do battle for truth and justice, in the war of the Rebellion, very many of them bearing commissions with them, or earning them in some well-fought field. Some lie yet in unknown graves among the pines of the South; others returned only to linger a brief time, and now sleep beneath the sods of homeland; while others yet live to enjoy the fruits of their sacrifices in a reconstructed and glorified country, founded upon justice and equal rights.

One other profession I cannot surely forget, for it has its disciples with us to-day,—the Medical profession. We count a goodly number of them among our pupils. Overflowing with milk of human kindness, they have taken the Balm of Gilead and gone forth to minister, and perchance to be ministered unto; and wherever they are, they not only preach but practice in their profession, and hold an honorable rank among their brethren.

And now, Mr. President, in closing, allow me to re-echo the sentiment, “The English and Classical School.” The first school of its class in the country to open its doors to all nationalities and colors ; placing all upon an equality, and acknowledging true manliness and brotherhood, irrespective of birth or complexion, believing that "A man's a man, for a' that and a' that."

Further short addresses were made by Rev. Henry J. Patrick, Hon. Thomas Rice, James T. Allen, Rev. Joseph H. Allen, Moses Grant Daniell, Rev. Joseph B. Clarke and Rev. Arthur M. Knapp ; letters being read from Hon. Alexander H. Rice, Charles W. Elliot, President of Harvard College, Prof. W. P. Atkinson, Pres. Runkle of Mass. Inst. of Tech., John D. Philbrick, Prof. Agassiz, Hon. Charles Sumner, and others who were unable to be present.

The exercises closed with the following,

SONG.

BY REV. J. H. ALLEN.

TUNE—" Yankee Doodle."

We gather here from far and near,
In these old pleasant places ;
Our tasks give o'er to look once more
On dear familiar faces.
Our memory plays about old days
With thoughts of warm affection ;
Old times, old friends, it softly blends
In tender recollection.

When spring's fresh green and flowers were seen,
When winter piled the frost on,
When summer's sun rained fire upon
The road from here to Boston ;
When autumn days brought golden rays
And trees with ripe red fruit on,
We never budged, but up and trudged
The way to old West Newton.

With weary feet the way they beat, —
So long, so far it stretches, —
When first they try with wishful eye,
Those little five-year wretches !
So long a time, so steep to climb,
That awful hill of knowledge,
By line and rule, from Model School,
To the door of Harvard College !

The world is wide ; not all who tried
Have reached that dizzy station ;
But side-paths lay both sides the way,
For rest and consolation.
A farm or trade or schoolhouse made
To some a strong attraction ;
A business life, a house and wife,
Was dearer satisfaction.

Those gather back who left the track
At various way-stations ;
True-hearted yet, they here forget
Those other fascinations.
To-day they come like children home,
Refresh the life they're living ;
Enter once more the generous door,
And share this glad Thanksgiving.

An evening sociable and dance in the Town Hall, the Germania
Band being in attendance, brought the Reunion of 1871 to a close.

THE REUNION OF 1893.

The initial steps for the second reunion of the school, in 1893, were taken during the three previous years, in the endeavors made to locate the living of 3,500 teachers and pupils who, during its forty years of existence, had in any way been connected with the West Newton English and Classical School proper; having, also, the ultimate object in view of the formation of an alumni association and the publication of a complete catalogue.

After the lapse of so many years, with pupils that had come from nearly every part of the globe, the search for them all was long and tedious, requiring exhaustive correspondence, but conducted with enthusiasm by scores of those teachers and pupils having facilities; thus tracing and locating those who had not kept in touch with the school.

When all but some 150 of the 3,500 had either been located or were known to be no longer living (over 500 in number), the following invitation was issued to many, principally in the vicinity of Boston.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 21, 1893.

After two days of rain, "our day" was everything that could be desired (followed by more stormy days).

Everyone assigned a duty had done, and that day did, well his part.

The 500 guests that joined in the festivities found the hotel and grounds delightful, and their decoration (jointly by the proprietor and the committee) especially attractive. The two tents erected for the literary exercises and for the refreshments were spacious, the music furnished by the American Watch Co. band of twenty-five pieces was most satisfactory, the literary feast being at all times enjoyable, while the refreshments and service, due to Mr. Lee's personal interest in the occasion, were praised on every hand.

A large photograph of over three hundred faces was taken later in the day, by Chandler Seaver, of West Newton, who can supply copies.

The Teachers' Reception, and the renewal of old and the forming of new acquaintance among the pupils, was too soon cut short by the request to assemble for the regular exercises.

The old schoolroom bell, with its tone unchanged after forty odd years of service, had been surreptitiously obtained, and with this the chairman of the Executive Committee, following the custom of the school and amid much laughter, called the assembly to order.

In further keeping with the custom of the school, the exercises were opened with prayer, by Rev. Francis Tiffany.

After a few words of welcome, the chairman of the Executive Committee introduced the President of the Day.

ADDRESS OF JOHN H. RICKETSON.

Mr. Allen, Past and Present Teachers, Fellow Pupils, Ladies and Gentlemen : — As one of the members present the day the school opened in January, 1854, I have been asked by the Committee, to whose enthusiastic and well directed efforts we are indebted for this most successful reunion, to act as Moderator, as we used to say in the old town meeting days. I appreciate the honor all the more highly because this is an exceptional use to make of an oldest graduate. You know, on an occasion like this, they are generally arranged in a row facing the audience, and are expected, like children, to be seen and not heard, and to sit gazing at the younger alumni, with a look which seems to say, "As we are now, you soon shall be." But although we of the classes way back in the fifties are not as young as we were, we are surely not as old as we hope to be; and judging from the feelings of one half and the looks of the fairer half of our contemporaries, we can scarcely realize that in a few short months it will be forty years since Mr. Allen first called us to order, and Father Peirce asked God's blessing on the new school, a prayer which has been so signally answered. Now, we must not allow our guests to suppose for a moment, that the teachers of pupils so long out of school are necessarily Methuselahs. None of us realized at the time, as we all have since, how little difference in age there was between all save one of the teachers, of whom we stood in such awe, and many of the scholars. So, to be the bond that unites the boys and girls of '54 with those of '93, Mr. Allen need not be and is not, by any means, an old gentleman. True, he is very wisely, after a laborious and successful career, throwing some of his burdens upon younger shoulders and enjoying well earned rest and recreation, travelling in Europe, visiting the Pacific Coast, laying up treasures of observation, as well as reading for the time when life shall become a retrospect. He comes of sturdy stock; he has led a well ordered life, and the vital record of his family justifies us, not only in the hope, but the belief, that after witnessing the dawn of the new century, he will see the middle, if not the close, of its second decade, surrounded as he will be by "That which should accompany old age as honor, love, obedience, troops of friends."

There can be no reunion, however joyous, that is not tinged with sadness. Time will not permit us here to call the roll of our schoolmates, and to pay loving tributes to those against whose names the fatal asterisk is placed, whether they fell as many did in the War for the Union, or have since died.

" But tender memories hover 'round
And fill the eyes with tears,
For those who've left us one by one
In all the vanished years.

" The absent form, we see it still,
Its presence fills the air,
With reverent mien we bow the head
For every vacant chair."

While each class must be left to recall its own past, both of sorrow and of joy, a few brief reminiscences of the teachers and the school, as it was in '54 and '55, may not be out of place. From the start the school was a success, as might have been expected from the character and experience of those at its head. I am glad to find that the cheerful, homelike schoolroom, so dear to us all, is practically unchanged. I can see, as if it were yesterday, our teachers in their accustomed chairs, — Father Peirce on Mr. Allen's right, on his left Mr. George Allen, Miss Dresser, Mrs. Urbino, while on the right of Father Peirce sat at the piano Mr. B. F. Baker, our genial teacher of music. These constituted the Faculty in our day. It was Father Peirce's habit after the devotional exercises in the morning to offer a "Sentiment" (I am told the custom has been continued), which consisted then, as I presume it does still, of a brief selection in prose or verse, embodying some truth he was anxious to impress upon our minds. I recall one or two of them. "What pearl is that which rich men cannot buy, which learning is too proud to gather up, but which the poor, the despised of all, seek and obtain and often find unsought? Tell me, and I will tell thee what is Truth." "When human policy fastens the chain to the ankle of the slave, Divine justice rivets the other end around the neck of the master." I remember but one instance in which a frivolous saying crept in among these sober utterances. Each scholar had to be ready with a sentiment, and one morning a great, big, good natured schoolmate from Ohio was called upon, and rising slowly in his place, said he, in as deep a voice as he could command, "Hungry men call the cook lazy"; an announcement which was received alike by teachers and pupils with suppressed emotion, and which proved almost too much for even the gravity of Father Peirce.

I notice in the programme an allusion to the Journal, another old familiar friend we are glad to know still lives. It is pleasant in these days of constant and radical change in methods of instruction, to know that there is one school, and that our own, which has retained so many of the rules and requirements of forty years ago, and has adhered so closely to its old and well tried curriculum. There can be no school task which combines more advantages than the Journal, faithfully kept. It makes the pupils their own monitors, while its abstracts of lessons, lectures, sermons, discussions, its record of events and reflections thereon, with all mistakes in syntax, spelling, punctuation and the general form of expression, corrected every week or fortnight by one of the teachers, combine to form a system of daily composition as useful as it is unique.

We are glad to know, too, that the Lyceum still flourishes. I well remember the evening we met at Mr. Allen's house to frame its Constitution, and the first meeting at which it was adopted. It was in the early spring of our first year, although the young ladies were not admitted as members until October. I have found a letter dated October 21, 1854, which contains a boyish account of the first meeting at which the ladies were present. It runs as follows:—

"Last night at the Lyceum, the young ladies were present for the first time, and their paper, 'The Gleaner,' was read. It contained a series of articles that reflected great credit upon the contributors. The editorial was a very able production, as was also a poem entitled 'The Old Bell,' a parody on 'The Old Oaken Bucket.'

"The subject for discussion was 'Is it possible to be always truly polite, and yet perfectly sincere?' The boys had to admit that the girls completely outdid them, and it is to be hoped that their vanity was so wounded as to arouse them to action."

It is difficult for the present generation to appreciate the intense excitement that existed during the period from 1854 to the outbreak of the Rebellion.

After the passage of the Kansas-Nebraska Bill in 1854, which repealed the Missouri Compromise, the whole North became one vast debating ground. Mr. Lincoln was declaring in Illinois that a house divided against itself could not stand. In the Senate of the United States were those great champions of freedom, Chase, Seward, Sumner, Wilson, Hale and Wade; in the Lower House, Thad. Stevens, Horace Mann, Washburne, Giddings, Bingham, Banks and Burlingame; in the schools the boys were speaking Bryant's "African Chief" and the girls were reciting Longfellow's "Slave's Dream"; Whittier and Lowell were making their ringing, rhythmic appeals to the heart and conscience of the North ; Mrs. Stowe's " Uncle Tom's Cabin," published three years before, had found its way to every Northern household. On the platform were Phillips, Garrison, Parker, Higginson, Curtis, Beecher, Gerrit Smith, and Cassius M. Clay, while William Lloyd Garrison supplemented his appeals from the rostrum by thundering forth his broadsides in " The Liberator " against what was called " The sum of all the villainies," which Horace Greeley echoed as loudly as he dared, in the columns of the New York Tribune. The great anti-slavery struggle was approaching its climax, and if I may be allowed the expression, no school in the country was more closely in touch with it than our own. Our declamations, compositions and discussions related for the most part to the all absorbing question.

In June of our first year occurred an incident which aroused the people of New England, and indeed of the whole North, to the highest pitch of excitement. Anthony Burns, a runaway slave, was arrested in Boston and arraigned before the United States Commissioner, Loring, under the provisions of the Fugitive Slave Bill. The day the decision was to be rendered, the older pupils asked permission to go into Boston, which was granted. We saw Burns closely guarded by Marines from the Charlestown Navy Yard, and by a Company of Artillery from Fort Warren (there was no protest then on the part of the South against the employment of United States troops to enforce National laws), march from the court house to the dock on his way back to bondage.

That night at the Lyceum, the subject for discussion was " Ought the North to aid the South in returning fugitive slaves ? " In the midst of the debate, about half past eight, Mr. Allen entered the room and took a seat by Father Peirce. A little later Father Peirce told us what had happened. Mr. Allen, unable to restrain his indignation at the scene he had that day witnessed, had cried " shame " as Burns was marched by the place where he was standing, and some one, clothed with a little brief authority, had laid violent hands upon him. I assure you that, had it been in their power, the members of our Lyceum would have anticipated the Emancipation Proclamation and then and there have abolished slavery by a unanimous vote.

I cannot close without a few words of tribute to three of the teachers of this school who are no longer living, one known to most of you ; one to many ; and one, except to a few, known only by name.

It seems strange at this reunion not to have Mr. George Allen with us. He seemed so inseparably a part of the school, always at his post, always the same, calm, dignified, kindly, considerate teacher and friend ; and Time was apparently touching him so gently, merely silvering his hair, but not impairing his vigor, that we thought he would live for many years longer. He died in the early autumn of 1888, beloved by all his associates, by the hundreds of pupils whose teacher he had been, and sincerely mourned by the entire community in which he had passed the greater portion of his useful life.

A little more than a year later, his cousin, Professor William F. Allen, who had given to this school seven years of his early manhood, at the head of the classical department, died while still in the prime of life. Professor Allen came to West Newton after my time, but it was my privilege to know him most pleasantly, and only a few weeks ago I heard a professor of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, say of Professor Allen, that New England never gave a more accomplished and scholarly man to the cause of education in the West. He was a loss to American letters. He will ever be held in loving remembrance by all who knew him, at Cambridge where he graduated in the class of 1851, at West Newton and Antioch, Ohio, where he taught, and in the State of his adoption, Wisconsin, of the Faculty of whose foremost University he was for more than twenty years so distinguished a member.

Of Father Peirce it can be truly said, that all you have heard of him, all the traditions that have been handed down concerning him, can give you but an imperfect conception of that singularly gifted man.

With fond affection, memory loves to dwell
On the old days, when his example made
A pastime of the toil of tongue and pen.”

Should you ask to what his remarkable success as a teacher was due. I think those who knew him best would answer, to a sympathetic nature, that drew his pupils closer to him and inspired them with the love of knowledge, and to his infinite patience.

While his discourse was for the most part upon serious subjects, he did not overlook the gentler graces, and was equally at home in his lectures on politeness and courtesy, of the old fashion type of which he was himself the embodiment.

One summer noon, two young ladies, day scholars, had seated themselves on the piazza in front of the schoolhouse, and were opening their lunch baskets as Father Peirce passed on his way home to dinner. They invited him to lunch with them. Lifting his hat and bowing his thanks with the grace of Lord Chesterfield, with a smile which illumined his face in a way which once seen could never be forgotten, he answered in the words of the immortal Gilpin,

“ All the world would stare
If wife should dine at Edmonton
And I should dine at Ware.”

It was said of Dr. Arnold, who was born five years after Father Peirce and died seventeen years before him, that, if he were elected Master of Rugby, he would change the face of education all through the public schools of England; and his biographer adds that he seemed always to act from a severe and lofty sense of duty, and that to be just, honest and truthful was ever the aim of his being. True as these words were of Dr. Arnold, they were equally, I had almost said doubly, true of Father Peirce.

In conclusion, let me beg the younger alumni to remember that “New times demand new measures and new men.” Although the great question, to which I have alluded, has been finally settled, there are other burning problems, which time will not allow me to enumerate, but which will readily occur to you, the solution of which calls for the highest order of intelligence and patriotic effort.

Young men and young women, with the knowledge acquired and the training enjoyed in this school, with the moral chart and compass here placed in your hands, go forth fearlessly wheresoever duty may call. So and so only can you hope for a full measure of usefulness and happiness in your day and generation, and best do credit to the academic cradle in which it has been your good fortune to be rocked.

Lieut.-Gov. Wolcott, after tendering the greetings and congratulations of the Commonwealth, closed by saying :—

“It is because this school has produced types of high character and citizenship that you meet here to-day to do honor to it and its teachers. Men and women come back here to the scenes of their alma mater with honors won, with characters formed, and gladly pay tribute to the school and its influences.

“To the younger alumni, one great value of this occasion will be in hope and encouragement for the future. The success attained by older pupils will furnish an impetus for high emulation.”

Mayor John A. Fenno, in behalf of the city, said that Newton was justly proud of its schools and of its educators. Of the latter, none were more highly respected than the Messrs. Allen, and it was a pleasure and a privilege to publicly express appreciation of their work in the cause of education.

BROTHERHOOD.

BY ESTHER B. TIFFANY.

High hearts had they, but narrow creeds,
Who wrested from New England's soil
The first scant harvests for their needs,
With lives of prayer and toil.

Nor dreamed that faith so vast could grow,
Or sight so clear, or love so wide,
To make one brotherhood below,
And stretch from tide to tide.

Lo! North and South and East and West,
And sunny isles and storied lands,
Send each to-day a welcome guest
To grasp the honored hands

Of these our masters, whose broad creed
Bids bars of race or nation cease,
Of whom the ringing watchwords read
Truth, Brotherhood and Peace.

With hearts as high, with faith more free
Than that our fathers understood,
The cry ring out from sea to sea,
Truth, Peace and Brotherhood!

Edwin B. Haskell, of Auburndale, representing the Press and the Citizen, spoke as follows :—

“When I came to be a resident of this neighborhood, twenty-one years ago this month, the first man whose acquaintance I made said to me: ‘You will find the people here divided into three classes, the saints, the sinners and the Allen family.’ It was not an original remark. The same joke was earlier applied to another family, the Beechers, and is of still greater antiquity. But after twenty-one years of rather close observation of the Allen family, for I have mingled freely with all these classes, and as freely with the Allens as with either the saints or the sinners, I see the fitness of its application in this case by the old settler.

“I have found that the Allens think for themselves, that they are faithful to their convictions, that they stand upon their own views and theories of life, and that, while not deficient in sentiment or imagination, they have a very firm grasp on the realities of this universe.

“I will not enter into a dissertation on schools and teachers, though on that subject, as the sentry says in ‘Iolanthe,’ I sometimes have ‘thoughts which would astonish you.’ But this simple remark I will make, that the best results in teaching are produced by the direct action of mind on mind. And I mean the whole mind on the whole mind.

“The best school is not the one which has the most elegant building or the most complete apparatus. It is the one where mind best acts upon mind.

“Right education is not so much storing the memory with facts, — which may not be facts next year, — but stimulating the desire to know and developing and regulating the power to think. By such means and in this direction the Allen school has won its success. To this effect I have heard the testimony of many of its pupils, and I have observed the results in my own family.”

ADDRESS BY NATHANIEL T. ALLEN.

Mr. President, Ladies, and Gentlemen, dear and valued friends all:—

Thanks for this generous greeting. I most heartily thank you, my honored friend, Mr. President, for your kind remarks. Words are inadequate to express my feelings, as this multitude meets my eyes, when I remember that you were once students in yonder building, somewhat under my care and direction.

It is embarrassing to find myself occupying the prominent position you have placed me in this afternoon.

Whatever of sternness may have been deemed necessary in schoolroom discipline, my love for and warm interest in you individually and collectively have never wavered or been wanting.

To our good friend, Eugene F. Fay, more than to any or all others, this joyful occasion is due. Five years ago, Mr. Fay met me in Boston and asked if I could furnish a complete set of the school's catalogues. These were sent him. A year or more passed, when I learned that he was intent upon preparing a full and complete catalogue of the school with reference to this reunion. From that time he has labored with a generous, self-forgetful devotion rarely paralleled in my experience, giving long days, months, and years to this labor con-amore. Later, others of you, by the score, were interested in the work and have rendered praiseworthy assistance. Nevertheless, our grand reunion to-day is due to Eugene Francis Fay, and we will not forget it.

During our social meeting this afternoon, you have indulged in many reminiscences, some of which were at your teachers' expense.

This is a game which two can play at, for teachers occasionally revert to former times. You, Mr. President, may remember that more than once, when a tap at the door called me from my desk near the midnight hour, did I find the lad, now a man of your dimensions, before me. He had come from his studies to bid me "good-bye," thus relinquishing his course of college studies. A few words and a good-night encouraged the lad to continue in the course which was so happily finished by honorable graduation at Harvard.

Under the lead of a remarkably able but unscrupulous young fellow from Ohio, now deceased, our presiding officer of to-day was induced, with others, to join a secret society. When at initiation he was required to make oath to sustain members, right or wrong, he with great moral courage denounced the doctrine and left the hall, when the society was suppressed.

No one acquainted with our friend, the originator of this reunion, and who believes that "The child is father to the man," will suppose that fickleness was a characteristic with him as a lad. Then, students boarding in private families were expected to conform to regularly arranged study hours out of school. Noticing this lad in the street during study hour he was called to account, when he remarked to his teacher that he had changed his study hour, which was assented to, and a new hour fixed. Soon after, finding this lad again upon the street and during the new study hour, he was called to account the second time, and with honest shrewdness he informed the teacher that he had again altered his study hour. In the above was exhibited the persevering changeableness in our friend. But I must not now dwell upon these, to me, interesting reminiscences.

You have alluded to my long service as teacher. These have been years of earnest work and of delightful experience. Next to the parent and immediate relatives, the teacher stands in interest in and love for his pupil.

The joy and gratification in the prosperity and success, or sympathy with the adversity, of the pupil are correspondingly intense. Imagine, then, the accumulated deep joy which is mine as I greet this multitude of those I have known as children and pupils, who have nobly and laboriously attained the honorable position and rank of worthy, useful citizens. Not here alone are such found to-day. Scattered over this and foreign countries have I heard from or seen the other thousands who are doing good service in their day and generation. During our late visit in the West, this deeply impressed us.

It need not be stated to you, my friends, that we were overwhelmed by the generous hospitality of your former schoolmates. It was embarrassing; for none but the highest service could deserve such attentions as were showered upon us. You can thus understand the delight which comes to the teacher who continues through many years to receive such expressions, and from men and women he considers it an honor to know.

Were it not forbidden to indulge in a Wednesday's moral lecture, the temptation would be strong to do so, though not at all needed with you whose characters are formed and rest on so good and firm a foundation.

To you older graduates it will be grateful to recall that noble man and able educator, Rev. Cyrus Peirce (Father Peirce as he is known to his pupils). During the first few years of the school he exerted a beneficent influence with us. It was a benediction to look upon his face, to listen to his words of council, and the admonition, "Live to the truth." Nor must we forget that remarkable woman, Madam Urbino, whose influence was so earnest and inspiring. Then, too, modest, though able and scholarly, Wm. F. Allen, who after seven years of efficient work here was called to other fields of kindred labor, and who spent many years of admirable work in the University of Wisconsin, when this ripe scholar and wise man was removed by death from his most useful life leaving a precious memory with the thousands who had been inspired by his pure life and able instructions. We also remember his brother, Thomas Prentiss Allen, whom every one loved and whose memory is sweet with all who knew him. I must not omit Mr. Phineas Allen (Uncle Phinny) who, in all the sixty-five years spent in teaching, left no pupil who did not hold him in loving, respectful remembrance, nor do you wish me to omit mention of the late member of the fraternity, "Allen Brothers," the well-loved teacher here for thirty-six years, an honored, trusted citizen, the just man, George Ellis Allen. Allow me, Mr. President to congratulate you most heartily, and through you the chairman of the committee of arrangements, with his corps of assistants, upon the admirable result of their arduous work. Thanking you all for your kind reception, I will close.

ADDRESS OF MISS MARY A. GREENE, '70-'73.

REMINISCENCES OF SOME PECULIAR FEATURES OF THE WEST NEWTON ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SCHOOL.

Four things stand out prominently as peculiarities of this school. These are, the Journal, the Saturday Session, the Moral Lecture, and the Term Report to Parents.

Of the first two it is hard to say whether the Journal or the Saturday Session was most of a trial to the pupil. The Saturday Session was a bugbear that pursued us from Monday morning to Friday noon; but then, we knew that if we learned our lessons and behaved ourselves we should escape it, unless, indeed, some desperate teacher should put an entire class into session for its generally unruly conduct, in which case we might suffer for the sins of the rest. But this was an infrequent occurrence, and, ordinarily, if we had studied and behaved, we could listen with a quiet conscience when, in that solemn hush on Friday afternoon, the teachers one by one read the names of those called to session, serenely conscious that we were not "in it."

So much a part of the regular routine of the school was that Saturday session that I think the day scholars felt themselves under as much obligation to attend it, if called, as any regular week-day session. At least I know that was my own view of it; and when I was called to session for the first and only time during my school days—as a member of the drawing class which was put bodily into session for disorderly conduct—I, though a day scholar, felt obliged to go, or else get excused by a teacher, and, owing to the circumstances of the case, I did obtain an excuse.

But the Journal like the poor was always with us, and was like the friend sticking closer than a brother. That "page a day" must be written, often filled up with laments that there was nothing to write about, and again running over upon a second page with learned accounts of the length of the Great Lakes, of the effect upon the earth of its inclination upon its axis, or with the stories of mythology so charmingly told us by Mr. Joseph Henry.

Those four volumes with marbled sides and faded red leather backs which contain the record of my three school years! How their perusal brings back the forgotten events of school days! The bi-monthly examinations, with all the questions copied into the Journal, the annual school-sleighrides, the Reunion of 1871, Mr. James teaching the Japanese how to play blindman's buff; Miss Dabney dancing Teneriffe fashion at recess, and Van Sicklen falling down stairs,—all these are recorded equally with the stirring events of the Franco-Prussian war then raging, the Chicago and Boston fires, the great horse epizootic, and the Grant and Greeley campaign of 1872.

I can imagine nothing in the way of drill in expression of thought more valuable for present practice and future pleasure than a faithfully written school journal. It is worth reams of those stilted and unnatural dissertations upon abstruse subjects which are known as "compositions." It cultivates a good narrative and descriptive style by giving the scholar an opportunity to write about the things that most interest him at the moment.

It was, however, often a bore in school days, and I find in mine a wish that I were a boarding scholar, and went to study hour, so as to be obliged to write my journal at a fixed time, and not have it hanging over my head till I got ready to write it. Again, I record that "journals are well enough in their way, but, like everything else, too much is not agreeable."

The journal naturally suggests the Moral Lecture. For do we not all remember that the Wednesday moral lecture must be the subject of a page in the journal or else we must write a page and a half about something else?

Mr. Nathaniel's moral lectures upon swearing and the use of tobacco are as carefully recorded as those he gave us upon character, or upon manners and morals; for, though we girls felt ourselves to be in a state of holiness as to profanity and smoking, lifted above the reach of temptation, still we felt that we could use the arguments of the lecturer upon our boy companions down in the vale of sin or on the hillsides of virtue,—and then it was less work to write a page about the lecture, than to take the other horn of the dilemma and write a page and a half about something else.

Mr. Joseph's lectures upon sin, virtue and holiness, and upon obedience to authority, with the illustration of Jonah going to Tarshish instead of Nineveh, and Mr. James' upon habits and selfishness, among many others come clearly into mind as one reads the abstracts in the journal, and the fact that we had heard the same lectures the year before only served to deepen the impression they made on our minds.

Sometimes we had a biographical sketch of a great and good man, instead of a discourse on moral principles. George Washington, Father Peirce, Samuel J. May, and others, were set before us as examples; and once, as an example to be shunned, Jim Fisk was held up in a moral lecture, which, in singular illustration of the perversity of the human heart, is more fully reported than that upon George Washington.

If the moral lectures were intended for aids in the formation of character, the report made to the parents at the close of each term showed, in the opinion of the teachers, how far we had succeeded by the use of these helps. This large, mysterious sheet of paper sealed in an envelope told our parents just what each teacher thought of us, and oh, how we longed to break the seal and see for ourselves the portrait drawn! What an excellent drill in moral discipline it was to keep that envelope intact, and carry it home to our parents with the seal unbroken. And if they allowed us to read the contents, how pleased we were at all the kind things said, and how we would resolve to do better than ever next term!

I have spoken of certain peculiarities of the school. These, however, are all parts of one system, looking to the supreme end of all instruction in this school, the development of character as the truest education. It is this peculiar emphasis upon character building that distinguishes this school from others with which I am acquainted. The emphasis is not only in the minds of the teachers, but it is kept constantly and prominently before the pupil. This constitutes the special peculiarity of the school.

Distinction of age, sex or race cannot exist upon this broad foundation. It is what the scholar is capable of becoming as a free moral agent, with the help of God, that determines eligibility to membership in this school, not the mere fact that the pupil is white or black, male or female, Caucasian, Mongolian or African. For those of any race who desire to develop the good that is in every human being, there is a hearty welcome.

Co-education, too, is a necessary consequence of this underlying principle.

In the school as in the home and as in adult life, boys and girls mingle under wise restraint, each helping to develop the character of the other, and thus becoming better fitted to work side by side in the future home or in the activities of the outer world.

When I found myself the only woman student in a law school of 175 young men, I was not conscious of anything peculiar or embarrassing in my position, it was so like my experiences of by-gone years at the Allen School, when I was the only girl, or one of two or three girls, in a class of boys.

I had learned in those early days, from teachers and parents, that there should be nothing bold or unnatural in a woman's doing that work for which she is best fitted, not even though the work lies in a field chiefly occupied by men; that it is ability and strength of purpose, not sex, that should determine the life work of an individual. And so if I were to state what I consider the one distinguishing feature of our Alma Mater I should say: It is the emphasis laid upon the formation of a strong, self-reliant, well-rounded character as the great object of education; and the constant effort made to impress upon the pupil the fact that all instruction and discipline is but a means to this end.

VALEDICTORY REMARKS.

BY JAMES THEODORE ALLEN.

Friends, Fellow Schoolmates and Fellow Pupils :

It is the privilege and the province of the valedictorian to devote some portion of his time to prophecy—to cast the horoscope and read, with seer-like vision, the future of his schoolfellows and companions. That difficult and precarious task I am happily relieved from today. We stand not upon the threshold of the Temple of Fortune or of Fame—we are far advanced in its halls and corridors, and whether those halls be a mosaic of tessellated pavement or laid with simple pine boards, I doubt not each has striven to “act well his part” in life, where, indeed, “all the honor lies.”

On this happy occasion, with our sun at noonday or past the meridian, how grateful the privilege of reverting to the morning of our existence and of renewing the blessed memories of our youth! The silver locks, the spectacled noses, the bald heads by which I am surrounded, suggest indeed a dream, and I rub my eyes, adjust my spectacles and scratch my head to test the reality and prove myself truly awake. Parting as children and meeting as grave and reverend seniors, I fain would believe myself, like Æneas of old, led by the Cumæan Sibyl to the Shades below—that nursery of heroes—where are pointed out to me “distinguished souls, about to succeed to our names.” They have thus succeeded—and, behold, loaded with years and with honors, they crowd our horizon to-day. We meet them on every side. As one discloses his identity to another, have you not detected the resemblances—the merry twinkle of the eye of childhood—the mellowed tone of a familiar voice? Such a transmigration of souls it is indeed a privilege, a pleasure, to believe in.

My life in the school, as a fellow-pupil of some few of you, can be measured by weeks—my life as an instructor is measured by a generation, for pupils come and pupils go, but we go on forever. The same old schoolhouse shelters its pupils now, the same desks and the same chairs furnish the school-rooms. If they did not come over in the Mayflower, they are at least puritanic. Possibly the chairs are a trifle thinner than when you warmed them—they are no softer. And the desks—you will seek in vain thereon, my boy friends, for the evidences of your skill with your maiden jackknife. With the passage of the McKinley bill, the fronts of those desks towards those chairs were deftly covered with tin, a metal hitherto supposed to be indigenous to Wales.

Those desks, those chairs, are historic, as is the building. There sat the first classes in the first Normal School in America — nay, more — the first lady graduates of the first Normal School in the world. Here was the parent kindergarten in America, taught by Frau Louise Pollock, now of Washington, D.C., a German pupil of Fröebel, twice removed.

Dr. Dio Lewis no longer stalks the schoolroom with impetuous tread, nor do his ashes animate his bust, which graces the ancient bookcase, but he lives in his book-racks, upon the desks and in his little book, "In a Nutshell," which is cracked occasionally for the delectation of the pupils, while his light gymnastics, taught here for the first time in our country, are now coexistent with school systems and schoolhouses throughout the land. Conservative of what is good, receptive of all reforms, this I think has been the character of your "Alma Mater."

I need not, in this presence, do more than to claim your approval of the principle of co-education, which has always found lodgment and expression here. The great difficulty that our girls have given Mr. Fay, and others, by so generally changing their names, is conclusive evidence that they approved of the principle. And however shy you boys were when here, shy surely of your teachers' eyes and ears, you have, I judge, got bravely over that shyness now.

This principle of co-education, while it ante-dates that of "Object Lessons" in name, is essentially of the same nature. We say to a boy: "John, those creatures, on the east side of the room, are girls. See how they differ from you! Notice their fair complexions, their long and wavy tresses, their liquid eyes, their tender glances. Listen to their falsetto tones; study them, John!" And John studies them. We have no further occasion to emphasize this advice to Nancy. She sees the point at once and enters upon the study with alacrity. How can anthropology be taught, either in a seminary for ladies or a college for men alone?

You will find geography taught with us as of old. The class studying about the Torrid Zone is ushered into a room with a southern exposure, where it can bask in the rays of the Southern sun, while the class on the Frigid Zone can follow Dr. Kane or Lieut. Peary to the ice floes of the "upper classical room." Oh! the school has always recognized the value of object lessons. But I must not abuse your patience, or I shall become an object lesson of forgetfulness myself.

This is possibly the last great reunion of the school. Almost a sixth of those whose names are in our catalogues have passed on into the Celestial Kindergarten. We are well represented there, — I mean, of course, in the Better World.

I wish I might compel an attendance at another gathering similar to this, in another quarter of a century. I can think of but one way to secure such a result, that is by urging you all to emigrate to Southern California or Colorado. You have heard the story: In laying out a city in Colorado or Montana, after provision had been made for every feature of an Eastern City, men bethought themselves of a site for a cemetery. One was found, beautiful in situation. It was carefully laid out, with winding ways and by-paths, planted with trees and diversified by ponds, bridges and grottoes, but it waited in vain for an occupant. No one would die, and finally, to start the cemetery, they were forced to kill a young man, 150 years of age, who had renewed his youth in that healthful climate. He was the seed from which they trusted a cemetery would spring. Shall we then emigrate to Colorado, that we may meet again? I leave the answer to this question to you.

And now with "Here's to your health, your wives and your children, and may they live long and prosper," I bid you an affectionate good-bye.

The literary exercises of the afternoon closed with the singing of "America," when an adjournment was taken to the refreshment tent and the remaining portion of the day was passed socially, followed by an evening reception and dance in the several rooms of the hotel that had been assigned the Reunion Committee.
